Avian Influenza & Outbreak Update Most recent news . . .

Since February 2, confirmed cases of H5N1 highly pathogenic avian influenza have been reported. Cases have been detected in Indiana, Delaware, Michigan, Maine, New York, Kentucky, and Virginia. As of March 2, H5N1 has also been confirmed in Iowa and Connecticut.

The virus has been confirmed in both commercial and non-commercial (backyard) flocks. A 10-kilometer control is established around each affected flock. The clocks are tested weekly, if not more frequently.

State officials work with federal agencies to determine best practices and best course to prevent further spread. They have authority to implement what they deem appropriate to protect their poultry industry. We encourage members to monitor their individual state veterinarian websites for updates and/or any posted restrictions.

As always, we encourage members to practice biosecurity measures and manage a clean and healthy loft.

AU Bio-Security Recommendations

Basic bio-security measures should always be used. It is more important than ever to make sure you are cleaning your loft regularly, washing hands going in and out of the loft, monitoring or perhaps restricting others from going in and out of your loft and placing new birds in a quarantine section before integrating them with your other birds.

AU Bio-Security Recommendations are found at:

Other Ways You Can Help

The AU also developed the Loft Certification Program many years ago. We have encouraged members to participate in this self-regulating program to illustrate optimum care is provided the birds. It is achieved through a point system and is based on practicing basic bio-security. The AU Loft Certification Program doesn't cost anything. For more information, please feel free to call the national office (800-755-2778).
